THE INFANTA IN CHICAGO.

RECEIVED WITH ENTHUSIASM BY THE PEOPLE OF THE WORLD'S FAIR CITY.

WELCOMED AT THE STATION BY MAYOR HARRI SON AND ESCORTED BY CAVALRY TO HER HOTEL-PLANS FOR HER ENTERTAIN-MENT-WARMLY GREETING THE DUKE OF VERAGUA.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE TRIBUNE.] Chicago, June 6.—For once, and to the extreme de-light of all, the weather in Chicago has been most gracious, and Princess Ealalle saw the city at its best to-day as she was driven from the Union Depot to the Falmer House, between the hours of 12 and 1, with a prevailing temperature of 64 degrees. The wind was from the east, a quarter which is not favored by those who have susceptible throats; but, coming from that quarter, the smoke was driven westward and an almost cloudless blue sky was over head. While these conditions changed at the twilight hour, the Infanta saw enough of sunlight and clear sky to enable her to derive a favorable impression of the World's Fair city. The train was prompt in arriving at the Union Depot, and the royal party experienced little or no fatigue from the journey.

Princess herself slept well and late, and when she alighted on the station platform from her she looked as bright and cheery as if stepping out upon the sidewalk from the Hotel Savoy for a merning stroll. The throng was great at the sta tion and over the bridges of the railroads and the there, the police detachment being sufficient, with the assistance of the cavalry troop, to keep the Vay

The official reception may be said to have begun in the station, when Mayor Harrison was presented to the Princess, and, offering her his left arm, escorted her up carpeted steps and over level spaces and pavements, also carpeted, to the carriage at the curbstone. Mayor Harrison is conspicuous for his Democratic style of dress. It is hardly in the memory of living his Government for instructions. man that he has ever been seen with anything but a black slouch hat on his head. He contributed, therefore, something to the sensation of the day by ap-pearing with a new silk hat, which, after meeting the Princess, he carried in his right hand, walking bareheaded until seated in front of the Infanta and Prince Antonio in the carriage of Potter Falmer, in which the journey to the hotel was made. Along the streets throughout the entire distance there masses of men, women and children. It being the noon hour, when workmen and working girls and women were out of doors for a breathing spell, the crowd, which was composed largely of this class, may be said to have been typical of this great city.

The distance from the station to the Paimer House is about one mile. Approach to the hotel was made from the east, the line of march having been extended across state st. to Wabash-ave., whence the turn was made westwardly into Monroe st. The troopers rode at an easy trot and the carriages foldrawn at the same gatt. Monroe-st., between State-st, and Wabash-ave., was almost a solid and enetrable mass of people, which, before the arrival of the party, had to be cleft in twain by the persistent dashes of the police. The appearance of the cavalry escort, advancing with their steady trot, drove the masses back to the curb and sidewalks, pressing them close together and forcing those ahead to flee for safety's sake toward State-st, and beyond. There was a great shout as the Princess stepped upon the carpeted sidewalk and was es-corted into the hotel. Nothing could have been more enthusiastic, and it must have been gratifying to recipient of this greeting of good Within the hotel many of the guests of the house, as well as outsiders who had in various ways obtained entrance, assembled in the hall along the the of approach to the Infanta's apartments. But it was an orderly crowd, and yielded politely to the escorting party. The Infanta was glad to reach her room, for there had been much excitement all along the route and her slightly flushed face showed the effects. The apartits had over-night been beautifully decorated by John Thorpe, chief of the Floriculture Department at the World's Fair. Tropical plants were arranged pansies and of American Beautics and other of the choicest roses. The Spanish colors were conspicuous, but the entire pian was simple and beautifully exe-cuted.

The Princess rested quietly in her parlors during the afternoon, preparing for the elaborate series of entertainments which have been devised by the Committee on Reception. To-morrow noon she will meet the a tests at breakfast of Mayor Harrison at his home. This will be followed by a reception at 1:30 o'clock. In the evening she will be the guest of President Highibotham, of the Werld's Fair Directory. Her first visit to the Exposition grounds will be made on Thursday, when she will be received in the rooms of the Administration Emilding by Director-General 1:31, a neakfast with President Painer, of the National Commission, will fellow and in the other parlors during the mode of the Exposition orchestra. The bands began their concerts in the open air at noon. The crowds about the stands were only fair. In the afternoon the Lineff Russian choir of thirty people gave its second concert at Music Hall. The attendance was good.

The plan as so far marked out provides for a reception at the home of Mrs. Potter Palmer on the Lake Shore Drive, on Friday evening. The Princess will afterward have her time at her own command; and it is expected of course, that she will make several visits to the Exposition and letsurely and at her will inspect the exhibits in the several departments. The guests at the breakfast at Mayor Harrison's will be limited to about twenty. Among these will be Mr, and Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mr, and Mrs. Highabotham. Fresident T. W. Palmer and Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Trunbull. About seventy-five invitations have been Issued for the reception, and about twenty-farr will comprise the number of guests at the dinner to be given by Mt. ENOUGH MONEY TO BUY LEGS FOR HIM.

Will you kindly notify your readers that at money has already been received to provide legs for the young man for whom we appealed in your paper a day or two since, but that not quite agh has been received for the octogenarian wood engraver and his wife, and some additional sums them would be very welcome. A list of acknowledgments will be sent at the close of the week. CHARLES D. KELLOGG, General Secretary. New-York, June 6, 1893.

A NOTED STOCK FARM ROLD.

Philadelphia, June C .- "Erdenhelm," the famous ock farm near Chestnut Hill, established by Aristides Welsh, was sold at auction to-day by order of the heirs of the late Commodore Norman W. Kitson, who was the last owner and manager of the breeding place. The property was put up in four lots. The first was prising the mansion, dwellings, barns, stables, etc., and was bought by James G. Weldon for $74,100. The and a tract of three acres for $500. Both purchasers are Philadelphians.

"Erdenheim" was the principal breeding place of imported Leamington, whose sons and daughters bred and raised by Mr. Welch, wan nearly $450,000, and in 1875, 1876 and 1881 stood at the head of winter-getting stallions. Among the cracks who first saw daylight at "Erdenheim" are Parole, Iroquols and Aristdes. The body of the great trotter, Flora Temple, is buried there.

A much-needed simplification of administrative detall in the affairs of the Exposition is, if reports be true, about to be effected. Ten days ago Director-General Davis and Director of Works Burnham sent a joint letter to the local Directory, arging that full authority in every department be vested in the Director-General and that he be permitted to chose an assistant, to be governed solely by him. A meeting of the Directory was held at the Chicago Club last night, at which this letter was considered. After much discussion it was agreed that a resolution should be passed at to-morrow's meeting of the Board, which will make Colonel Davis the Director-General de facto. It was thought proper, in furtherance of the plan to make Director of Works Burnham Mr. Davis's assistant, tous combining the two great departments of the Fair-Administration and Construction. Director-General will in the future receive his orders from the Council of Administration instead of from the National Commission, the Local Directory and the Board of Control. Under the new order of things much conflict will be avoided. The Council of Administration is composed of H. N. Higinbotham, president of the Expesition Company, who is the chairman; George V. Massey, National Commissioner from Delaware; Charles H. Schwab, of the Local Directory, and J. W. St. Clair, National Commissioner from West Virginia. The National Commission may, however, take exeption to this radical change being made without Harold Tait, Thorain Tait and irving 8. Upson, of its sanction. But as they do not meet again butil July 1, the rew system will have had time to show defects will be visible than under the conditions existing heretofore, the Commission may give passive acquiescence by not bringing the matter up. By bringing Mr. Burnham over into the Administrative lynches are also because of the Department R is safe to predict the early abolition of the Department of Construction as also which of the Department of Construction, a step which father. will result in a great curtailment of expenses.

There was no free muste at the Fair until noon to cay, when the Expesition orchestra, directed by Mr. Thomas, gave a concert in Festival Hall. MR. KNOX'S TITLE CLEAR.

HE AT LAST GETS A DEED TO HIS BROAD-WAY PROPERTY.

MORE THAN FIVE SCORE HEIRS OF THE LORIL-LARD ESTATE INTERESTED-AN INTRICATE REAL ESTATE CASE SETTLED AFTER

What has been declared to be the most complicated land title in New-York was quieted yesterday by the transfer of the full title deeds of the property No. 212 Broadway to Edward M. Knox, the well-known hat manufacturer. The interests involved were those of 137 heirs of the Lorillard estate, the smallest representing 1-13.520 of the property, and the lowest common denominator of all the interests being over 1,200,000. The property has been before the courts in partition proceedings for over ten years, of plaintiffs and defendants list including members of many prominent New-York families, among them, besides the Lorillards, being the Kips, the Barbeys, Kernochans, Cammanns, Heckshers, Ronalds and the Costers. Over forty members of the last-named family alone have en at various times represented in the proceedings. The abstracts of title make a pile of legal papers more than a foot in height. Philo T. Ruggles, the lawyer who was made referee and receiver for the Lorillard estate just fifty-three years' ago, has continued in that place ever since. Now the last of the legal complications in connection with the property has been cleared up, and the the payment of annuities of $500 to thirteen of his relatives, the payment to be made from the rents and profits of three pieces of property-No. 202 Broadway, No. 212 Broadway and a lot in West-st. In course of time No. 202 Broadway and the West-st. lot were sold under the provisions of the will, and left the annuities to issue from the Fulton-st. corner. This property had been bought in 1825 by George Lorillard for $25,000, and served a variety of uses, ranging from a dwelling house to a soap factory. After his death it was tied up, with the restriction that it should not be sold until after the death of all of the annuitants. Its value increased enormously, and soon was far more than sufficient to pay the $6,500 annuities. Finally it passed under lease into the hands of the father of Mr. Knox, who had established the hat business. The lot ad-joining it, where "The Herald" building now stands, was then the site of Barnum's Museum, and when that burned in 1865 the Knox Building went with it. It was rebuilt, and again leased by Mr. Knox for twenty-one years. The title to the property was jealously guarded by those who had acquired an interest in it through the intricate ramifications of the Lorillard relationshins.

So matters remained until about fourteen years ago, when Edward M. Knox's attention was called to the sale, among other effects of Mrs. Lorillard Spencer, of a one-twenty-fifth interest in No. 212 Broadway. He sent a real estate broker named Lynch to the sale with instructions to buy it at any price. He did so, paying $12,000 for it, or at the rate of $300,000 for the whole. It was supposed that he bought it for some member of the family, but his reticence when questioned led to a suspicion that some "outsider," as they term it, had secured a foothold in the property inter-

When they found that Mr. Knox was the purchaser they tried to buy it back at a premium, finally offering $20,000 for the recenveyance, Mr. Knox replied that the property was not in the market and could not be purchased at any price. Then some of the heirs offered to sell him their interests, at the same rate that he had paid for the first, and in less than a week he owned more than one-half of the property, and in the of it. It was the acquirement of that remaining tenth that has caused ten years of constant legal effort.

In 1883 George Ronalds, who owned one one hundred-and-twenty-fifth of the property, insti-tuted partition proceedings. Mr. Knox, who still held the property under lease, refused to consent to a partition and was made a defendant. There were, besides Mr. Ronalds, about 130 heirs to be taken into account, and every time one died, or a new heir was born, the proceedings had to be opened and the parties, complainant or defendant, changed accordingly, the total number appearing in the proceedings being 137. All had to be personally served with the papers in the case, and for this purpose three messengers were sent at different times to Rome, where the Princess Cenci, who was a Lorillard, lives. When after years of manipulation and legal red-tape, all proceedings were completed last February, and a sale was ordered, Mr. Knox bought the property in for $392,-000, over $300,000 of which was due to himself as his share of the proceeds.

Then began the great labor of searching the titles. In the first place, two of the original thirteen annuitants are still living. They are Peter Ronalds and Catherine Ann Duncau. The provision that the property could not be disposed of until all of far annuitants were dead was avoided by purchasing a $500 annuity for each in a trust company, and thus taking the burden from the property. Any number of intricacies in titles. In the first place, two of the original was placed on record.

Mr. Knox was asked last night whether, after his long struggle for the full title to the property, he considered the game worth the candle.

"I certainly do," he said, "and that property cannot be bought to-day for a cent less than $600,000."
